ON THE VERGE

Cloak and (not so much) Dagger

By Jason Wilson

Just when we thought the best cloaks were strictly relegated to Hogwarts' middle schoolers and megalomaniacal comic book villains, designer Lindsey Thornburg goes ahead and creates a non-fictional and even covetable option. Inspired by Thornburg's trips to the heights of Machu Picchu, the cloaks, which range in size from full to mini, are made of a Peruvian-inspired printed wool blend with silk linings. We're so in love with them that we had to blow the whistle right now, despite the 85-degree temperature and impending summer. And, yes, we are fully aware that overdressing in extreme heat is a symptom of schizophrenic dementia.
